welcome to your SOUND Journey

A journey to find more calmness, focus and relaxation. A journey to discover fresh, energizing sounds through instruments designed for anyone to explore, create and feel.

our vision

In the hectic chaos of the modern age, it's easy to lose yourself in the stress of everyday life. Restlessness has become a universal companion, whispering in our ears, urging us to keep going, keep doing, and searching for something just out of reach. Within this discord of the external world, there exists a profound remedy: Sound.

Sound has the power to bridge the gap between the outer chaos and our inner world, offering us a pathway to peace and serenity. We want to embrace the power of sound together and start truly listening again. To rediscover our inherent sound.

Our vision includes ...

- ... Creating moments of mindfulness and well-being in times of unrest, when everyone is always expected to perform.
- ... Allowing ourselves to slow down and reconnect with our inner world.
- ... Spreading our instruments with their positive effects all over the world to make them accessible to as many people as possible, no matter their age, gender, health, or wealth status.
- ... Reaching places with sound where words do not.
- ... Inspiring people to get creative and explore their own intuition.
- ... Supporting kids in finding joy through experimentation, strengthening their focus, concentration, and motor skills.
- ... Forming a way of communication through sounds for people who cannot express themselves verbally.
- ... Supporting all kinds of processes – physical, mental, and emotional.

The Power of Crystal Singing Bowls

Crystal Singing Bowls have the extraordinary ability to shift our energy, change the atmosphere, and guide us back to presence. Whether in a spacious studio or a quiet corner at home, they have a unique way of clearing both internal and external noise. They invite peace, especially when the vibrations arise from high-quality instruments, like Meinl Sonic Energy Crystal Singing Bowls.

From the harmony of the White-frosted bowls to the versatility of the Essence and Crystal Chalice and the deep intention that Colored and Marble bowls hold, I use a wide array of Meinl Sonic Energy Crystal Bowls in my sound baths and sound healing certifications.

I love using the entire line for various purposes and different moods I wish to create. As I've woven them into my sound healing, I've watched my students fall in love with the beautiful resonance of these instruments just as much as I have.

Frosted Crystal Bowls for Every Application

The White-frosted 432 Hz Chakra Set (see page 09) is my foundational crystal singing bowl set for all of my offerings. Each bowl in the set corresponds to a different chakra, or energetic center from yogic philosophy, and creates a well-rounded sound experience.

My must-have mallets are the Crystal Silicone Rods (see page 20), which offer a seamless playing experience. The polished edge of the Sonic Energy frosted bowls, paired with silicone rods, minimizes unwanted friction noise – sometimes called "drag" – when rubbing the bowl. The silicone mallets are highly responsive and an essential tool in my kit. I don't leave home without them!

I love to begin my sound baths by slowly singing the root chakra bowl (C note), then adding the solar plexus (E note) and throat chakra (G note) bowls to create the C Major Triad. When all three bowls sing together, they form a well-balanced, harmonic chord that my attendees love.

The frosted series also includes a wide array of bowls that can meet all sound practitioners' and musicians' needs with the 440 Hz tuned bowls (see page 18), the stunning Color and Marble (see page 10 and 19), Planetary-tuned based on Hans Cousto's work (see page 15), the ever-popular Solfeggio frequencies (see page 13), and even more to choose from. There is a Frosted Crystal Bowl for everyone!

Essence Crystal Singing Bowls

The Essence Crystal Singing Bowls (see page 24) bring elegance to both sound and aesthetic. I often use the Essence bowls when I need a soft, ethereal layer in my sound healing experience or when I am playing with other musicians. Their tuning to 440 Hz means they layer beautifully with the Crystal Singing Chalices, creating harmonious blends for group or solo sound work.

These bowls are easy to transport with sturdy, custom-designed carrying cases. I love holding an Essence bowl in my hand and using a Suede Resonant Mallet (see page 20) to alternate between singing and gently tapping the bowl.

The Essence bowls' luminous finish and craftsmanship inspire me every time I reach for them. These bowls are truly unique and always elevate the energy of any sound healing space.

Crystal Singing Chalices

Crystal Singing Chalices (see page 25) truly stand in a category of their own. If you've experienced a sound bath with me, you've felt their magic firsthand. I use them daily during intention setting in my yoga, meditation, and sound healing classes.

Chalices are a handy tool for offering a personal touch in even the largest of sound healing events. I like to walk through the space, sharing the vibrations of the chalice by singing and tapping the bowl with the Resonant Suede Mallet, offering each person a moment of personalized resonance.

The Meinl Sonic Energy Crystal Chalices' deep resonance and beautiful design often invite joyful smiles and curious questions from my attendees following a sound bath. Their quality is unmatched, and listeners feel their benefits.

Creating Sacred Space, Anywhere

Whether you're working in a large space or simply carving out a quiet pause in your day, Meinl Sonic Energy's Crystal Singing Bowls can help you create a sanctuary of sound anywhere.

As you embark on your sound journey, may you find the bowls that speak to your heart and bring more peace into the world – one vibration at a time.

SOLFEGGIO FREQUENCIES

Solfeggio – a term originally rooted in music theory – has found a significant place in Sound Therapy. The effects and magic of Solfeggio frequencies are perceived in various ways, each offering a unique connection to these ancient tones.

The Solfeggio frequencies form a six-tone scale originally used in religious music during the 11th century, with references to these frequencies dating back to early biblical times. These frequencies represent distinct tonal qualities that are believed to support and enhance various aspects of mental and physical well-being. Despite their powerful effects on the body and mind, Solfeggio frequencies may not always sound harmonious to the modern ear. This is because they do not follow the traditional Western musical scale, which is based on equal temperament tuning.

As a result, they can feel unfamiliar or dissonant, as they operate outside the conventional frameworks of intervals and harmonies, following a more ancient, natural tuning. The initially six well-known Solfeggio frequencies were complemented by three additional tones, completing the now nine-part scale, as follows:

In Sound Therapy, listening to these frequencies is associated with healing effects on the mind, body, and spirit, helping to restore balance. The exact mechanism by which Solfeggio frequencies achieve their effects is not yet scientifically proven. Nevertheless, instruments resonating with these potent frequencies, when paired with purposeful intention and a tranquil atmosphere, have the potential to create a profoundly soothing and harmonizing effect on our well-being.

THE CELESTIAL ORCHESTRA

Align with the universe through Planetary Tuned Instruments

From the very beginning, the night sky has fascinated humankind. Stars, planets, and lunar cycles were not only used for orientation and timekeeping but also inspired myths, stories, and spiritual interpretations. Even today, many people find guidance in zodiac signs and ascendants, seeing reflections of personality traits or life questions. Within this interplay of astronomical order and personal experience lies the meaning of planetary tuned instruments: they connect with the harmony of the celestial bodies and make it tangible through sound.

Every planet in the universe leaves behind a sound.

The celestial bodies in our solar system move in specific rotations and orbits. This movement creates vibrations with frequencies so low that they are inaudible to humans.

Swiss mathematician and musicologist Hans Cousto used the law of the Cosmic Octave to bring those low frequencies of the planets into a range that we can hear.

This allows us not only to listen to the sound of the universe but also to immerse in it and experience the effects of planetary tones on our body, mind and soul.

As within, so without

In some philosophies, humans are understood as a mirror of the cosmos. Everything that happens outside of us also happens inside us. According to this view, the vibrations of the universe are also deeply anchored within ourselves. The planetary tones are intended to remind us of this connection, promoting a sense of harmony and unity.

The Power of Planetary Sounds

Each planetary vibration carries its own unique quality. When we resonate with them, their effect can unfold and help us getting into a new perspective on how we perceive certain situations and challenges in life.

EARTH YEAR/OM – Inner Peace & Grounding

- » Often assigned to the Heart Chakra
- » Promotes deep relaxation, inner peace and harmony
- » Supports grounding and stabilizing practices

SUN – Radiating Power

- » Often assigned to the Solar Plexus Chakra
- » A powerful frequency to boost energy flow
- » Awakens the inner sun – willpower & vitality

SYNODIC MOON – Vibrant & Passionate

- » Often assigned to the Sacral Chakra
- » Promotes sensuality
- » Supports expression of emotions

JUPITER – Primal Trust & Harmony

- » Assigned to the zodiac sign Sagittarius
- » Mediates between tension and relaxation

Qi Harmony

Sound Healing Rooted in Chinese Wisdom

I was born in China, spent my youth in Australia, and later became a Daoist priest in Thailand. Carrying these multiple cultural threads – and after more than two decades of research and teaching in the field of sound healing – I've come to believe deeply in one thing: sound is a powerful gateway to inner balance. The philosophy of TCM Sound Healing, I believe, holds profound potential for human well-being around the world.

My collaboration with Meinel Sonic Energy began through a kind of serendipity. When I first proposed the idea for the TCM Series, the team offered me incredible trust and freedom. From that moment, the process of creating the instruments felt less like design and more like transmission – almost as if the universe was speaking through me. Ancient Chinese wisdom was simply finding a new form: one that anyone could access through sound.

The TCM Sound Healing collection continues to expand. Beyond Tuning Forks and Sonopuncture (see page 55), we are also exploring the dimension of Sono-Feng Shui – using vibrational tools like TCM Crystal Singing Bowls to harmonize energy fields in space. These bowls bring not just tone, but texture and atmosphere. They work not through points, but through fields. Their resonance spreads like qi itself – subtle, spacious, and enveloping – helping regulate breath, mood, and energetic alignment between the body and its environment.

I often say: TCM Sound Healing is not "the sound of ancient China" – it is a modern language born from ancient wisdom. These Crystal Singing Bowls invite everyone to experience how resonance can transform space and reconnect us with the invisible flow of qi.

About Woodie Wulin

Born in China, Woodie Wulin spent time living in Australia and is now based in Thailand. He is the officially recognized Chinese heritage inheritor of the TCM Sound Therapy project and one of Asia's leading sound healing educators, with a large student base in the region. As an ordained Daoist priest, he incorporates Daoist philosophy, Qigong, and Feng Shui into his approach to healing. He collaborated with Meinel Sonic Energy to create the TCM Series, empowering more practitioners to explore and apply Sonopuncture – an ancient and profound sound therapy method rooted in Traditional Chinese Medicine.

A Love called Singing Bowls

Singing bowls are fascinating instruments that can be used for everything from yoga and meditation to massages, beauty treatments, music, and even in kindergartens and schools.

My journey with them began in 2014 during a Silent Meditation Retreat in a Nepalese Buddhist Monastery, where one of the monks used the same singing bowl every morning to end the silent meditation. I could feel an intense resonance in my body, and as soon as I came back home, I started researching but didn't get the results I was expecting.

A couple of months later, I came across the singing bowls of Sonic Energy during the Meini Percussion Festival, and a small set of four Cosmos singing bowls marked the beginning of a deeper exploration. I took some courses but soon realized I needed to do my own research to truly understand these instruments.

Here's what I learned

First and foremost: quality and condition are crucial. It's essential that singing bowls are of excellent quality, especially when we seek healing effects from them. Not every bowl is capable of producing the resonances needed for healing, which is why we must carefully research and choose wisely. As a teacher, I often encounter a variety of bowls brought by my students to courses. We measure their frequencies and tones, and many are surprised to discover that the bowl's true characteristics differ from what they initially thought or why they purchased it.

Sonic Energy brought reliable quality to the European market, making it possible to buy online with confidence. While I honor the ancient legacy of bowls, I embrace a modern approach, blending tradition with today's fast-paced world.

Yin & Yang aspects of Singing Bowls

The singing bowl represents the feminine (yin), while the mallet is the masculine aspect (yang). Every time we strike the bowl, we are co-creating harmony and balance, symbolizing new life and fulfillment. Each bowl has a unique "personality," and surprisingly, some don't always sing, which is why I teach my students to carefully listen to their instruments. If you listen closely, you'll learn that each bowl communicates.

As soon as you enter the energetic field of a person or yourself, observe how the sound and resonance develop. If the sound fades quickly, focus on that area until the resonance deepens. This indicates the body is relaxing, shifting from disharmony to balance. Therapeutic bowls like the Cosmos or Energy series (see pages 29, 30) help to reset the body with their rich vibration. This practice can also be helpful for mental well-being when played softly near the head.

I don't follow a strict structure. Over the years, I've developed my own approach, using bowls flexibly based on the client's needs and the bowl's response. Each session becomes a creative, personalized healing experience because everyone is different.

I still work daily with my first Cosmos bowls, along with two Universal series bowls. Since the Origin series (see page 31) came out, I've integrated them for their clear meditative sound. Two years ago, I added a 13000 g Grounding Bowl (see page 31), which everyone loves.

Singing bowls are pure love, revealing their secret world to us and enriching our lives. Enjoy your journey with your favorite singing bowls!

Enhance Your Relaxation Practice with the Transformative Power of Sound

Yoga Nidra, also known as "yogic sleep", is a state of conscious relaxation induced through a guided meditation practice. This form of meditation brings about deep physical, emotional, and mental relaxation.

During Yoga Nidra, the mind is led through various mindfulness exercises, including awareness of physical sensations, breathing techniques, visualizations, and feelings of inner peace.

The goals of Yoga Nidra range from promoting relaxation and stress reduction to supporting self-healing and spiritual growth. Regular practice can improve overall well-being, calm the mind, and relieve emotional stress. Supported by the transformative power of sound, this experience becomes even more profound.

The Sonic Energy 3-piece Yoga Nidra Singing Bowl Set is handcrafted in India from a special bronze alloy, ensuring a high-quality sound experience. These three singing bowls can be used individually or together to deepen your Yoga Nidra practice, creating a soothing, immersive atmosphere. Their rich tones guide you into a state of deep relaxation, making them the perfect companion for achieving balance and inner peace during meditation.

For a more profound experience, the 5-piece Singing Bowl Set expands the sound range, offering a more dynamic and versatile meditation session. The additional bowls provide a variety of tones tailored to each phase of practice, fostering deeper relaxation and smoother energy flow. Whether used in personal meditation or group sessions, these sets are excellent tools for calming the mind, reducing stress, and enhancing the overall Yoga Nidra experience.

SOUNDSCAPE GONGS

In the serene Franconian landscape, a ripple begins across still lakes, growing as it moves through the quiet hills. The air thickens with energy, and soon, the valleys hum in harmony with the earth. This is the sound of our Soundscape Gongs – deep, resonant, and alive – awakening the senses and filling the space with a calming yet powerful presence.

Sonic Energy Soundscape Gongs are meticulously crafted in Gutenstetten, Germany, producing a rich, complex soundscape that comes to life with even the gentlest touch.

The design also includes an easily playable edge, providing enough space for the mallet to strike. With a polished surface, these gongs not only sound impressive but also have a luxurious shine. Adorning this gleaming surface are detailed symbols, each carrying its own meaning and enhancing the visual appeal of the gong.

The Flower of Life represents the origin of all things through sacred geometry. The collaboration of numbers, shapes, and vibration belongs to the oldest myths of mankind. It is the strive to connect with our origin and to understand ourselves.

Metatron's Cube represents the flow of energy and the harmony of geometric patterns in the universe. It embodies balance, creation, and the interconnectedness of all things. This ancient symbol is believed to hold the key to understanding the structure of the cosmos and the unity between the physical and spiritual realms.

The Om Lotus symbolizes the union of spirituality and enlightenment. The lotus flower, rising from the mud to bloom beautifully, represents purity and spiritual growth, while the Om sound signifies the essence of the universe. Together, they embody the journey towards self-realization, inner peace, and the connection to the divine.

The Spiral symbolizes growth, evolution, and the journey of life. Through its ever-expanding form, it represents the continuous cycle of development and transformation. This ancient symbol reflects the quest for knowledge, self-discovery, and our connection to the universe.

The Moon Phases symbolize the cycles of change and renewal in life. As the moon transitions from new to full and back again, it reflects the ebb and flow of our experiences and emotions. This ancient symbol embodies the rhythm of nature, reminding us of the constant process of growth, transformation, and the passage of time.

The Solar System represents the intricate dance of celestial bodies, each orbiting around the sun. This cosmic arrangement symbolizes balance and harmony. It reflects humanity's quest to understand our place in the universe and the relationships between the planets, stars, and the greater cosmos.

The Soul of Bronze

How Chinese Tradition Breathes Through the Gong

When I hold a gong, I do not hold an instrument.

I hold a universe – of vibration, of history, of silent prayer waiting to be sounded.

In the heart of China, where temples nestle between mountains and rice fields ripple like sheets of sound, the gong has always been more than metal. It is a messenger – between earth and sky, human and spirit, past and now.

Of Earth and Air:

The Spirit of Chau and Wind Gongs

In my work blending sound healing and ancient Chinese wisdom, I work closely with two voices – the Chau Gong (Tam Tam, see page 40) and the Wind Gong (see page 41). Each carries a different energy, yet both emerge from the same philosophy: that sound should move not only air ... but soul.

» The Chau Gong is earth – its voice deep, complex, almost ancestral. It doesn't just ring – it reverberates, traveling through the body like a slow-moving wave. In Traditional Chinese Medicine, we say it moves Qi – our vital energy – breaking through blockages, awakening the body's innate intelligence. It is the sound of grounding, of presence.

» The Wind Gong is air – its shimmering, lingering harmonics evoke mist, wind, and the spaciousness of high mountains. It corresponds to the Metal element, which governs release and clarity. It helps let go – of tension, of thought, of all that clutters the spirit.

Between these two voices flows the eternal wisdom of Tai Chi (太极) – the dance of Yin and Yang, the harmony of complementary forces. Just as the deep fundamental of the Chau Gong (Yin) gives rise to the Wind Gong's shimmering harmonics (Yang), and the strike (Yang) dissolves into sustain (Yin), the gong teaches the perpetual cycle of transformation. Its vibration is not a linear event, but a circular journey – a sonic Taiji circle that begins, expands, returns, and begins again, mirroring the very movement of Qi itself. To play is to embody this principle: to be both the stillness at the center and the motion at the circumference.

Together, they form a conversation – a balance of Yin and Yang, depth and lightness, form and emptiness.

The Poetry in Their Names: Insights From My Practice

Through years of playing, I've come to understand the poetic wisdom behind their Chinese names:

The name "Chau Gong" (抄锣) comes from the verb "chao" (抄) – meaning "to lift" or "to scoop." This perfectly describes both the motion of striking it (the mallet must lift away quickly to allow the full voice to emerge) and its sound – a vast, rising wave that seems to scoop up the energy in a space and transform it. It is sound as movement, as power.

The name "Wind Gong" (风锣) is pure imagery. Its shimmering trail of harmonics does not simply fade – it lingers like a breeze, swirling through the air and through our awareness, carrying away what is no longer needed. To play it is to invite the wind itself into the room.

Not Performance, But Presence: The Eastern Approach to Play

I was taught that how you strike is how you heal, so I never "perform" on a gong, but I commune with it.

The gesture must come from heart intention (心意), not muscle.

The stick is an extension of the hand, the hand of the heart.

I often begin by listening – to the silence around and within.

Then, the first touch is not a strike, but an invitation.

I let the gong speak through me – not for an audience, but for the moment.

And in that shared resonance, healing begins.

This is why in China we say:

"音入魂 – One sound can enter the soul."

Why I Choose to Share Meinl Gongs: A Bridge of Respect and Quality

The soul of these gongs is Chinese – born from an ancient bronze-crafting tradition. Meinl Sonic Energy is introducing them to the world, including China, through a partnership built on mutual respect and shared intention.

Meinl does not seek to replace this heritage – instead, they honor it through rigorous selection, quality assurance, and thoughtful design, ensuring that each Chau and Wind Gong not only carries its cultural authenticity but also meets the demands of international players and healers.

It is a beautiful fusion: the depth of Chinese tradition and craftsmanship meet the care and precision of German refinement. This is not a loss of origin – it is an evolution of reach. Together, we make these profound instruments accessible without compromising their spirit.

An Invitation to Listen Deeply

You need not be a musician to understand the gong.

You need only be human.

Close your eyes. Feel the vibration in your chest, your hands, your breath.

That is the gong's gift – a return to wholeness, through sound.

I play for that moment – when the mind grows still, the heart grows soft, and we remember ... we are not separate from the universe.

We are vibration. We are resonance.

We are one sound.

In shared resonance,

Working with TUNING FORKS

Tuning Fork Therapy is a gentle yet effective method for harmonizing the body and mind, promoting inner balance and well-being. By transmitting pure frequencies to specific points on the body, this therapy helps relieve muscle tension, engage the nervous system, and work with subtle energies to facilitate deep relaxation and restoration. Its lasting benefits address both physical and energetic imbalances, contributing to sustained well-being.

Tuning forks are used across several holistic healing systems. In Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM), they are applied to acupuncture points to stimulate the flow of Qi through the meridians, aligning with the Five Elements for physical and emotional harmony. In Acupuncture or Meridian Therapy, tuning forks offer a non-invasive alternative to needles, enhancing energy flow and clearing blockages. In Sound Healing, specific frequencies restore the body's natural vibrations, supporting overall balance. Biofield Tuning targets the body's electromagnetic field, using tuning forks around the body to clear energetic disturbances.

Balancing the Chakras

In the Yogic Chakra System, tuning forks balance the energy of the seven chakras, each of which is connected to a specific theme, color, symbol, and frequency. By combining the vibrations of the corresponding tuning fork with focused intention, one can help restore harmony, improve energy flow, and promote healing.

Elevate Tuning Fork Treatments with Vibration Feet

The Meinl Sonic Energy Tuning Fork Vibration Feet enhance the effects of tuning forks by increasing the contact area with the surface, amplifying the vibrations. With their ability to treat not only specific points but larger areas, they have found their place in various fields such as massage, cosmetics, and therapy.

Tuning Fork Vibration Feet see page 56

Tuning Fork Therapy for Pets: Harnessing Frequency for Wellness and Balance

Not only do humans benefit from the healing power of frequency work with tuning forks, but our four-legged companions and pets can also experience increased well-being and balance through this method. Animals, with their natural sensitivity and intuition, are especially receptive to these techniques. Since they often perceive stimuli far more intensely than we do, it's important to always use the vibrational feet when working with tuning forks to ensure their comfort. Animals will intuitively show whether the chosen frequency is working for them, making it easier to adjust and find the most beneficial vibration. While you can start on your own to see how your pet reacts, it's recommended to seek guidance from a professionally trained animal healer specialized in Tuning Fork Therapy when addressing more significant issues.

Tune Your Mind: Unlocking the Power with BINAURAL THERAPY TUNING FORKS

Imagine being able to tune your mind like a musical instrument, effortlessly shifting from deep relaxation to heightened focus, or even slipping into a meditative state, simply by listening to certain sounds. This is the promise of binaural effects, a fascinating auditory phenomenon that can influence our brain wave activity.

By using Binaural Therapy Tuning Forks in conjunction with the Master Fork 128 Hz, we can create this effect on our own. When the forks are struck and held near the right and left ear, the brain detects the difference between the two frequencies, perceiving a third frequency that guides you into the desired brain wave state.

Understanding how different brain wave states can influence and shape our experience and reality, plays a fundamental role in our journey of self-discovery and personal development.

These are the Five Main Types of Brain Waves:

Gamma – 30 to 100 Hz Where all ideas grow

Gamma brain waves are the fastest and are associated with high concentration, focus, creativity, and heightened alertness.

Beta – 12 to 30 Hz Sharp and focused glow

Beta brain waves heighten our alertness and analytical abilities. Typically, our brain operates at this frequency during daily activities that involve concentration, thinking, and excitement.

However, high beta waves can also lead to anxiety, stress, and restlessness. They are often associated with the "survival mode" that many of us experience constantly.

Alpha – 8 to 12 Hz Calm and mindful peace

Alpha brain waves are linked to a relaxed, calm state of mind. They promote relaxation while awake, reduce stress, and improve learning.

Theta – 4 to 8 Hz Creative flow

Theta brain waves are connected to a deeper state of relaxation, enhancing creativity and intuition while lowering stress and anxiety levels. This is where the door to our subconscious mind opens.

Delta – 0,5 to 4 Hz Deep and dreamless sleep

Delta brain waves are the slowest frequency and are associated with deep, dreamless sleep. Our minds and bodies experience their most profound rest and rejuvenation here.

Tapping into different brain wave states can be a powerful tool for enhancing emotional well-being and achieving greater independence from external influences. These states act as a gateway to our subconscious mind, where we can tap into our inner resources and explore our inner world.

QiHarmony

The TCM Tuning Fork Set

In the first part of this story (see page 16), we introduced the vision behind QiHarmony and how Chinese wisdom finds new form in sound – especially through the spacious resonance of the Crystal Singing Bowls. But the journey does not end there. Another essential part of the TCM Sound Healing Series is the Tuning Fork Set, which translates the philosophy of qi into precise frequencies and direct body resonance.

At the heart of this Tuning Fork Set is qi – the vital energy that flows through all life. In Traditional Chinese Medicine, qi connects Heaven, Earth, and the human body. Yin and yang represent its two essential modes of movement. The five elements – Wood, Fire, Earth, Metal, and Water – are qi's fundamental dynamics.

The Yin and Yang forks are tuned to the planetary frequencies of the Moon (210.42 Hz) and the Sun (126.22 Hz), supporting the body's energetic axis. The five elemental forks are inspired by China's ancient musical system; I drew specifically from the Zenghouyi Bell Chimes (c. 2400 BCE), mapping the pentatonic scale – Gong, Shang, Jue, Zhi, Yu – to the five major organs: spleen, lung, liver, heart, and kidney. Together, they form a comprehensive vibrational model of life.

But frequency alone is not enough. In Chinese medicine, acupoints are the bridges. I carefully selected seven of the most representative points for beginners: GV20 (Baihui) and CV17 (Danzhong) on the central Du and Ren meridians, which regulate yin-yang balance and emotional calm; and five elemental Yuan-source points – SP3 (Taibai), LR3 (Taichong), HT7 (Shenmen), LU9 (Taiyuan), and KI3 (Taixi) – each resonating with one of the five elements.

My own path of cultivation is rooted in Daoist healing practices, and these seven tuning forks have become essential tools in my teaching. Sometimes, simply placing a vibrating fork on a single point can awaken long-dormant sensations – tears released at CV17, anger flowing from LR3. These aren't miracles; they are reminders that the body holds its own wisdom and knows how to heal when gently activated.

TCM Sound Healing is a living evolution – I hope that everyone who encounters these instruments will hear their own rhythm within them – and feel the quiet presence of that invisible, yet very real, stream of energy between body and nature.

Sound is a touch you cannot see.

Sound healing is a return you cannot hear.

And in walking this path, may we not seek to become healers – but become more fully human.

Our Handpan Service

Our instruments mean a lot to us. Whether used for musical performance or sound meditation, a handpan often becomes more than just an instrument – it grows into a personal companion. That is why we place great importance on ensuring long-lasting joy and a worry-free playing experience.

Our in-house Handpan Service is dedicated to exactly that: preserving quality, sound, and your connection to the instrument. Before any handpan leaves our workshop, it goes through a detailed and careful quality check in Germany. Only when it meets our high standards does it continue its journey – either to a store or directly to your home.

And if, over time, a tone field shifts or your instrument needs fine-tuning, we'll be glad to support you. Service options may vary depending on your country, but we are steadily expanding our reach to make this service more widely available. Just reach out to your dealer or contact us directly – we'll be happy to assist.

Discover Your Intuitive Play

Intuitive play and music-making allow us to express our emotions and thoughts freely, without reservations. This approach to music doesn't require extensive musical knowledge or training; some instruments enable us to start playing without years of practice, inviting us to explore creativity in its purest form.

Find Your Inner Rhythm

Intuitive playing thrives on a good sense of rhythm. However, achieving this doesn't necessarily require long-term training. Simple rhythm exercises, like clapping or tapping out beats on a tabletop, can provide a solid foundation to help you enter a natural flow. These basic practices are often enough to connect with the rhythm within and let the music guide you.

The Essentials of Intuitive Play

To fully embrace intuitive play, you need just two things: an instrument and trust – trust in yourself and the process. Here are a few key aspects to consider as you dive into this creative journey:

- » Practice Makes Perfect: While intuitive play is about freedom, regular practice helps deepen your connection with your instrument and your inner rhythm.
- » Inspiration and Exchange: Seek out inspiration from other musicians or artists, and don't hesitate to share your own experiences. The exchange of ideas can open new avenues in your intuitive play.
- » Preserve the Joy of Playing: Above all, remember that the joy of playing should remain at the heart of your musical journey. Keep it fun, light, and engaging – this is where true creativity flourishes.

By embracing intuitive play, you open the door to a world of spontaneous musical expression. Whether you're a seasoned musician or a complete beginner, this approach allows you to connect with your emotions, explore your creativity, and enjoy the pure joy of making music.

The ideal instruments for beginners, intermediate and advanced players:

A SOUND JOURNEY FROM MORNING TO NIGHT

Introducing our collection of Cosmic Bamboo Chimes in 432 Hz, each crafted to resonate with the unique magic of the day's different times – Morning, Day, Evening, and Nighttime.

AURORA captures the essence of dawn, the moment when the world awakens from its slumber. This chime embodies the gentle whispers of the morning breeze and the soft glow of the first light, creating a melody that promises new beginnings.

SOL reflects the vibrant energy of midday when the sun is at its zenith. This chime echoes the warmth and vitality of the day, its tones bright and uplifting, filling the air with a sense of possibility and the invigorating pulse of life.

LUNA embodies the tranquil essence of the evening, when the sun meets the horizon, dipping the sky in warm colors. As the moon rises to take its place in the night sky, this chime's melody is gentle and reflective, a harmonious blend that invites contemplation and a peaceful transition from day to night.

STELLA captures the mystical atmosphere of nighttime, under the watchful gaze of the stars. Its sound is delicate and ethereal, like the distant twinkle of starlight, offering a sense of calm and connection to the infinite expanse of the night sky.

Each chime is designed to resonate with the spirit of these special moments, bringing the magic of the day's natural rhythm into your space.

The Frequency of 432 Hz:

A Harmonic Connection to Nature

The frequency of 432 Hz is often referred to as the "harmonic frequency" or the "natural tuning" due to its perceived alignment with the vibrations of the universe, nature, and the human body. Many musicians and sound healers believe that music tuned to 432 Hz can create a calming and meditative experience, promoting relaxation and well-being.

THE SOUND OF NATURE

Whether it's birdsong, flowing water, rustling leaves, or ocean waves – the sound of nature is widely recognized for its calming and therapeutic effects. These soothing sounds help reduce stress by lowering cortisol levels, easing anxiety, and creating a profound sense of calm.

Nature's melodies offer more than just a pleasant background noise. They inspire musical instruments that mimic and amplify these soothing sounds.

From Birds Chirping to Mountain Streams Gently Flowing – Seed Shakers, Chimes and Raindisk

Shaker instruments have ancient roots in indigenous cultures worldwide. Traditionally made from seeds, nuts, or gourds, they were not only musical tools but also carried spiritual meaning. In shamanic work, shakers connect body and mind with natural energies, their rhythmic pulse echoing the heartbeat of the Earth.

Small shakers sound like rustling leaves, larger ones like flocks of birds. Pala and Kenari Chimes add a flowing touch, reminiscent of mountain streams. (See page 78)

This association with water continues in the Moon Phases & Tree of Life Raindisks – capturing the same rushing stream sound in a completely new way (See page 80)

From Gentle Drizzle to Heavy Rainfall – Rainmakers, Rain Sticks and Thunder Drums

Instruments that mimic rain and thunder, like Rainmakers, Rainsticks, and Thunder Drums, can have a powerful cleansing effect. The soft, rhythmic drops of a Rainmaker imitate summer rain, clearing the mind and washing away stress. A slowly turned Rainstick adds the calming flow of cascading water, while the deep rumble of a Thunder Drum channels the grounding energy of a distant storm. The interplay of these instruments can feel like a force of nature. When used in the right context, all pent-up energy can be released, much like a summer thunderstorm breaking through the heat.

The Soothing Sound of the Ocean – Wave Drums and Raindisks

Wave Drums capture the calming essence of the ocean, their rolling beads echoing the rhythmic ebb and flow of waves lapping against the shore. The Raindisk with Fibonacci inspired carving adds another dimension to this watery world, mimicking the gentle murmur of a stream or the soft hush of the sea. Together, they invite deep relaxation, guiding meditation, sound therapy, or simple moments of peace. Whether carried by the vast rhythm of the ocean or the tender trickle of a stream, these instruments bring the soothing sound of water into your hands – balancing body and mind with nature's most timeless element.

(See page 80 and 85)

Echoes of Nature – Didgeridoo

The sound of a Didgeridoo is like the deep, resonant hum of wind moving through ancient caves, swirling and echoing in rhythmic waves. It vibrates like distant thunder rolling across the horizon, steady and powerful, yet grounding. At times, it mimics the low rumble of the earth itself, as if the ground beneath you is alive, breathing in long, slow pulses. The didgeridoo's tones can shift like the call of a distant animal, or the rhythmic heartbeat of the wilderness, creating a primal connection to nature's raw, untamed energy. While these sounds affect us on a deeply mental and emotional level, learning to play the Didgeridoo can also improve your physical health.

FIND YOUR OWN RHYTHM IN COMMUNITY

The Magic of Drum Circles

Drum circles offer a unique space where individuals come together to connect through rhythm and sound. In these circles, the simple act of drumming transforms into something magical, as personal expression blends into a collective beat. It's a space where everyone, regardless of skill level, finds their rhythm and contributes to a shared musical journey.

Drum circles create an environment where the barriers between people dissolve, replaced by the pulse of the rhythm shared by all. Each beat becomes a conversation, a heartbeat of the community, where everyone has a voice, and every sound matters. In this sacred space, time seems to slow down, and participants often find themselves more deeply connected – to themselves, to others, and to something greater beyond words.

The experience can be both invigorating and deeply meditative, as the rhythms become a form of expression that taps into something primal. The simple, repetitive beats can help release stress, spark creativity, and allow participants to let go of inhibitions. There's no right or wrong in a drum circle – just the freedom to create, listen, and respond.

To fully experience the magic of a drum circle, it's important to enter with an open mind. Let go of any expectations, and allow yourself to actively listen to the rhythms around you. Rather than putting pressure on yourself to perform or play perfectly, focus on the joy of participating and connecting with others. The beauty of a drum circle lies in its spontaneity and collective energy – it's a space for everyone to simply enjoy, be present, and find their own rhythm within the community.

SONIC ENERGY ONLINE

ENHANCING WELLNESS – NOT A MEDICAL ALTERNATIVE

Some of our products are mainly used to strengthen the self-healing process and to find and release energetic blockages. With the correctly applied product, physical and psychological well-being often can be increased, but not guaranteed.

Please note that sound work can be a supportive practice for a lot of processes, but it is important to recognize that it is not a medical alternative. Every individual is unique, and what works for one person may not work for another.

The use of our products is in no case a substitute for a medical or psychotherapeutic treatment or diagnosis. Contact your health-care provider immediately if you suspect that you have a medical problem.

Our instruments are great tools to support your meditation and getting into a relaxed state.
